Manufacturing Process

The jarapa is a completely hand-crafted product made entirely from materials recycled from scraps of fabric of the textile industry. Our product is made mainly of cotton, which sometimes gets to be almost 100% of the material composition.

The raw material that we use is obtained by recovering and processing textile wastes, such as the clippings left over by the manufacture industry of curtains, bed covers, linen, etc. or the threads left over by the textile industry, as to achieve a more uniform raw material in terms of colour shades that results in a more even final product.

Key Differentiating Features

The fact that we use recycled raw material and that the loom and the manufacturing methods belong to a tradition started in the 12th century make of our jarapa a product with a unique character and a great added value.
